Mariboro, Md., Nov. 17.—The large crowd at Mariboro to-day was treated to a series of spectacular finishes that had them on their toes from beginning to end. Tiger Jim, a hot tip, made good for his badders, in the opening event, while Goodacre, the public favorite, nosed out Tiny Tim for the place. Sir Edward, long overdue, finally made good in the second, winning in a romp from Hibernica and Mason.

The steeplechase was clusely contested the entire route, and the winner turned up in Miss Hynes, at the lucrative odds of E to 1. Gartuman was second and The King thid.

Silas Grump won the fourth race in a hard drive by a bead from Fanchette, with Barette third. Sabe Blend finally found his racing legs, and after making all the early pace in the fifth insted long cnough to win by a nose. Royal Onyx was second, a nose in front of Blue Crest.

Bull-dog and Tiger Evenly Matched

Big Gridiron Game Likely to Be Punting Duel. Capt. Howe to Oppose De Witt-Walter Camp, jr., to Play.

Special to The Washington Herald.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 17.—The first of the annual football matches to decide the championship between Harvard. Yale, and Princeton will be played to morrow, when the last two will meet at this city. Last year the score was Yale this city. Last year the score was Yale 5, Princeton 3.

This year the elevens are more evenly matched. Both met reverses early in the season, but have profited by these setbacks, and have developed slowly until now they are at the top of their form and should give the best display of real football seen so far this season.

Too much stress should not be laid upon the showing of the Tigers last Saturday, when they only defeated Dartmouth by a field goal, and that a fluk. In the first place, Dartmouth was represented by one of the strongest teams in its history, and, secondly, Princeton did not have its full 'varsity eleven on the field; nor did the coaches allow any of the secret plays which have been especially of the strongest teams. field; nor did the coaches allow any of, the secret plays which have been espe-cially prepared for Yale to get out. The Tigers coachers would sooner have seen the team defeated than show their hands to the Yale scouts who were in the grand stand.

to the Yale scouts who were in the grand is stand.

The principal faults manifested by the Princeton team early in the season were the inability of the line to play its part when called upon, and the little or no interference that was afforded the runner. The line has recently come into its own, and in consequence more particular attention has been paid to schooling the backs to form quicker and better interference for the man with the ball. Practically all the practice this week was devoted to this feafure of the play. As a result the work has shown some improvement and is almost satisfactory to the coaches.

with the enside kick that Prince-It is with the ensade kick that Princeton has met with the most success, but even at best this play is essentially more a matter of chance than is a well executed forward pass. But with Princeton's unusually fast forward line, the onside kick seems to offer more possibilities than anything else. Both White and Duniap have proved themselves wonderfully proficient in getting under these kicks.

Panting Duel Likely.

With De Witt on one side and Capt.

Howe on the other, the game is more than likely to be a punting duel. While the Tigers' defense is undoubtedly strong, they will take no chances of letting Yale get within striking distance of their goal, and will resort to kicking at every opportunity at the least sign of

danger.

Yale will probably advance the ball farther from scrimmage, but even so it is not a sure thing, by any manner of means, that this style of play will win for the Buildogs. Most teams the Tigers have played have experienced but little difficulty gaining ground in the middle of the field. Last Saturday Hogsett and the other Darimouth backs ripped off big gains through and around the Princeton team until they had crowded over into the Tigers' territory and close enough to carry the assault a few yards farther to make a try for a field goal. But when that point was reached there came a tightening of the Tiger defense. Where yards were gained before, only feet, and even inches, were hard to cover. It is not unlikely that the same situation will prevail to-morrow. Yale outrushing the Tigers in middled, but unable to get through that powerful defense when the Princeton end of the field is invaded. Yale has a powerful line, but whether it could rush that last Sor 39 yards against such a front as Princeton will present remains to be seen to-morrow.

GEORGETOWN PREPS CAPTURE BATTLE

Army and Navy Eleven Defeated by 11 to 5 Score.

Work, While Billy Martin Puts Up Fierce Game at Right End. Capt. Jenkins Makes 80-yard Run for a Touchdown.

Georgetown was oned more victorious on the gridiron, the Blue and Gray Preps defeating the ...rmy and Navy youngsters, il to 5, in the game that decided the preps school championship of the District, yesterday on the Tennallytown field.

The embryo collegtains put up a hard battle throughout, and only a long run of 50 yards gave the Army and Navy eleven a touchdown. Capt, Jenkins, the smashing full back of the comips Uncle Sams, went through the suttre Frep team for an 80-yard hike over the chalk marks, planting the oval behind the line for the first touchdown of the game.

Crowe, the speedy left half back of the Blue and Gray youngsters, played one of the best games ever witnessed on the Tennallytown gridiron. His line plunging and end runs were the features of the battle, together with the work of Martin and Pemberton. The pair of guardians of the point positions played hard, and it was their tuckling that saved more than one touchdown.

The first Georgetown Prep touchdown came in the fourth quarter, when after the bail had been advanced to the Army and Navy's 5-yard line, Crowe, by a fast joints, Martin missed an easy goal. With only three minutes to play, and Georgetown was once more victorious

CHAPTER XXXVI.

The Judge Receives a Letter. After he had parted with Solomor Mahaffy the judge applied himself dili-gently to shaping that miracle-work-ing document which he was preparing as an offset to whatever risk he ran in as an offset to whatever risk he ran in meeting Fentress. As sanguine as he was sanguinary he confidently expected to survive the encounter, yet it was well to provide for a possible emergency—had he not his grandson's future to consider? While thus occupied he saw the afternoon stage arrive and depart from before the City Tavern. Half an hour later Mr. Wesley, the postmaster, came assureting up the dopart from before the City Tavern. Half an hour later Mr. Wesley, the postmaster, came sauntering up the arreet. In his hand he carried a letter. "Howdy," he drawled, from beyond the judge's open door.

The judge glanced up, his quill pen poised aloft. "Good evening, sir; won't you step inside and be seated!" he asked graciously. His dealings with the United States mail service were of the most insignificant description, and in personally delivering a letter, if this was what had brought him there, he felt Mr. Wesley had reached the limit of official courtesy and dispatch. "Well, sir; it looked like you'd never told us more than two-thirds of the truth!" said the postmaster. He surveyed the judge curlously. "I am complimented by your opinion of my veracity," responded that gentleman promptly. "I consider two-thirds man promptly." I consider two-thirds matering. He hitched his chin higher and squared his ponderous shoulders. "I am not forgottenno, damn it—no!" he exuited under his breath. "Recalls me with sincere esteem and considers my services to the country as well worthy of recognition." The judge breathed deep. What would Mahaffy find to say now! Certainly this was well calculated to disturb the sour cynicism of his friend. His bleared eyes brimmed. After all his groping he had touched hands with the resilities at last! Even a Federal judgeship, though not an office of first repute by the Bouth, had its disnity—it signified something! He would make Selomon his clerk! The judge reached for his he Make was the seal.
